

Patricia M. Wiggenhorn
Vice President

Patricia M. Wiggenhorn brings extensive communication and coaching experience to The Leader's Edge™. An accomplished corporate communications executive, Pat's expertise includes communication strategy, speechwriting, executive coaching, and presentation skills training.

Prior to joining The Leader's Edge, Pat was vice president and director of communications and public affairs at telecommunications giant, Motorola. While there, she worked closely with the chief executive officer, the chief operating officer and the senior team to implement strategic communication plans that aligned communications activities with corporate objectives. In that position, she counseled senior executives on strategic and tactical communications issues and implemented a multi-tiered approach to informing, aligning, and reinforcing messages to employees throughout the world. When Pat left Motorola in 2002, the company's chief operating officer lauded the "special support you provided me as we communicated with our people—it was benchmark," and the chairman and chief executive officer wrote, "you have wonderful values, a gifted writing style, and extraordinarily good judgment."

Pat holds a Master of Science in Management from Rosemont College and a BA in Communication Arts from the University of Dayton. She is currently a resident of North Barrington, Illinois. Pat has managed people, projects, and processes throughout the world.